

Contest: The Funniest Graph

The Journal of Irreproducible Results (the science humor magazine) invites entries in its contest for "The Funniest Graph".

Enter any form of graph or set of graphs, from any branch of science, medicine, engineering, management or public administration. Write-up may range from a caption to an article. Contents need not be true.

Pseudonyms are welcome. If the graph has already been published, please include the full citation. If it was created by someone else, make the situation clear.

Entrants must be from Earth or its immediate vicinity. Entrants may renew or subscribe to JIR at 10% off the usual $26.95/year. JIR's judging, however arbitrary and capricious, will be final. Winners will be featured in the magazine, anthologies, and www.jir.com, and receive a 3-year subscription plus a JIR anthology.

Entries must be received on paper at JIR\Graph, 413 Poinsettia Ave., San Mateo, California 94403 USA. Deadline: April Fools Day 2006; any extension will be announced on www.jir.com.

Norman Sperling
Editor

PS - Please forward this to all scientists, engineers, Managers, public administrationists, or doctors who might be interested.